Music Department Presents "Trip Around The World"

Notable Program Rendered In Pageant With Many Musical Numbers Featured

The Music Department of G. S. C. W. presented a unique and interesting pageant, "A Trip Around the World," Monday night in the auditorium. The pageant was especially planned for the Music Department by Miss Fannie Virginia McClure.

The piano numbers reflected the careful training of Mrs. Allen. The quality of tone and articulation, as well as the ease of manner of the voice numbers, portrayed the painstaking work of the students and their teacher, Miss Tucker. The violin numbers, prepared by Miss Horsborough, were most interestingly given. The organ solos by Miss Jenkins and the orchestra directed by Miss Horsbrough added much to the program.

The Music Department was assisted by students from the physical education department who rendered a number of dances.

The majority of the costumes were planned according to the "Folk Costume Book." Other costumes came directly from the different countries.

Under Mrs. Hines skillful direction some interesting stage effects were produced, and Dr. Weber added color with the lighting.

The following program was rendered:

America
Organ—America—Miss Jenkins.
Orchestra—Southern Airs.
Piano—McDowell — Czardas—Song—The Sailor's Anchor—Miss Sue Mansfield.

Many Courses Are Offered Students

Total of 210 Subjects Available For Second Semester at G. S. C. W.

With seventy-eight faculty members offering 210 courses, students at G. S. C. W. should have little difficulty in choosing an interesting program of work for the spring term.

The department of education, with twenty courses, heads the list. Household science and English come as close seconds with eighteen each; followed by household art with seventeen. The chemistry and art departments each offer eleven courses and history ten.

Eight courses are listed in biology, mathematics, music, and physical education. The health department offers seven; French and typewriting six; agriculture, geography, home economics, and Latin, five each; accounting, physics, Spanish and stenography, four.

Sociology offers three; commerce, economics and library science, two; and stenotypy, one.

Every student on the campus should find the task of selecting a course of study easy, as well as fascinating.

Dr. Edward Grant Talks On Youth Of Orient

Discusses Japanese and Chinese Youth From Viewpoint of Experienced Missionary

Mr. Edward Grant, executive secretary of promotional activities, secretary of stewardship, and member of the executive committee of foreign missions of the Presbyterian Church, made an interesting address January 25 in chapel on the subject of the problems of Japanese and Chinese youth.

"There is no such thing," said Mr. Grant, "as the 'yellow peril.'" The yellow race has too many troubles of its own to make a concerted attack against the white. The Japanese, Mr. Grant declared, have been taught for centuries that they are a divine people, and now missionaries have upset their old ideals. The people have found everything turned upside down overnight. The older generation cling to the standards of their parents, but the youth are undisciplined and rebellious.

"The further Chinese and Japanese youth go toward western civilization, the further away they get from family and home," the missionary said. Younger people are disillusioned, and Fascism and revolution are the result. At one particularly dangerous waterfall in Japan policemen must be constantly stationed to prevent young boys and girls from throwing themselves over the cliffs in despair.

"The young people of the yellow race are turning to the West," Mr. Grant said in conclusion. They are adopting western habits, education, and most important of all, western religion. "If we make Christianity appealing, if we show them that it is real and worthwhile, they will accept it. It is up to us."

Many Unique Entertainments Planned For College Students

Prof. O. A. Thaxton Announces Lyceum Numbers As Well As Educational and Interesting Movies

A series of interesting entertainments has been planned by Prof. O. A. Thaxton for this semester. They will include lyceum numbers as well as movies.

Although the dates have not been set definitely, the lyceum numbers will include a German actor who will lecture on various features of the drama. The actor has played over six hundred different parts in plays.

Coming also in the near future is Fry, a magician. The Emory and Georgia Glee Clubs will also be offered as lyceum numbers. The dates will soon be announced.

Mr. Thaxton hopes to be able to secure "The Sign of the Cross," with Frederic March, as the last item of the year.

The pictures for the remainder of the semester are:

Feb. 4—"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

Feb. 11—"Morals for Women," with Bessie Love and Conway Tearle.

Feb. 18—"Magic Night."

Feb. 25—"Delicious," with Janet Gaynor and Chas. Farrell.

Mar. 4—"What Price Hollywood," with Constance Bennett.

Mar. 11—"Left Over Ladies," with Marjorie Rambeau and Walter Byron.

Mar. 18—"Amateur Daddy," with Warner Baxter and Marion Nixon.

Apr. 1—"Business and Pleasure," with Will Rogers.

Apr. 8—"Bill of Divorcement," with John Barrymore.

Apr. 15—"First Year," with Gaynor and Farrell.

Apr. 29—"After Tomorrow," with Chas. Farrell and Marion Nixon.

May 6—"Young America," with Spencer Tracy and Doris Kenyon.

Journalism Class With Dr. and Mrs. Wynn

Sue Mansfield Winner In Production of Greatest Amount of News Copy

The journalism class held its Thursday meeting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Wynn. At this time each member of the class made a report of the number of inches published during the semester. Every year Dr. Wynn presents a fountain pen to the one having the largest number. Sue Mansfield came first with 576 inches and Eulalie McDowell second with 572 inches.

Mrs. Wynn then served delicious coffee and cookies.

Members of the class at this meeting were Jane Cassels, Sara Deck, Mary Louise Dunn, Mary Davis Harper, Margaret Harvin, Sally Harrington, Bennice Johnston, Claudia Keith, Dorothy Maddox, Louise Mannheim, Sue Mansfield, Eulalie McDowell, Wilma Proctor, Althea Smith, Polly Reynolds, Maud Scott, Helen Pascal and the advisors, Virginia Hale and Marion Keith.

Dr. Scott Attends Association Meet

Dean of G. S. C. W. Head Of Association of Georgia Colleges, In Atlanta

Dr. Edwin H. Scott, dean of G. S. C. W. spent Friday and Saturday in Atlanta where he attended the seventeenth annual session of the Association of Georgia Colleges.

There are nineteen institutions enrolled as members of the Association of Georgia Colleges, of which Dr. Scott has served during the past year as president. The program carried out Friday and Saturday is said to be among the most interesting ever witnessed.

A number of notable educators addressed the college association delegation and subjects of vital interest to the advancement of education were discussed by the several speakers on the program.

DANCE RECITAL IS HELD IN GYMNASIUM

Students of Physical Education Department Afford Interesting Entertainment

The class in original dancing presented a recital of its dances Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the big gymnasium.

The themes of the dances varied, embracing folk, interpretive, and aesthetic types. Beautiful recordings of old masters accompanied the dances.

The idea of the dances was to show that corrective principles may be interpreted with beauty and grace in such a way that the dancer is unaware that the dance is for anything but the rhythm and grace.

Costumes for the dances were particularly effective and added much to the colorfulness of the performance.

The girls who presented their original dances were: Elizabeth Morgan, Lucile Harvey, Virginia Smith, Elizabeth A. Smith, Elizabeth Harris, Minnie Yetter, Vera Hunt, Emily Renfroe, Eulaween Bailey, Helen Hanna, Frances Scott, Jean Pigue, Marion Houser, Edna Mims, Elizabeth Skinner, Eleanor Davis, Susie and Julia Butts, Carrie Hitchcock, Lavoise Walters, Virginia Freeman, Catherine Allen and Margaret Johnson.

Guests at the recital were the members of the Physical Education Department, members of the faculty, the matrons, additional guests from outside, and a few members of the student body.

Delicious refreshments were served.

GRADUATES ARE GIVEN PARTY

Ennis Hall entertained at a party in the recreation hall Thursday night at 9 o'clock, honoring the following girls who left at the end of the semester: Virginia Hale, Willard Ragan, Ruth O'Kelley, Byrtie Hancock, Elizabeth Morgan and Virginia Moore.

Recreation Hall Is Scene of Tea Dance

Unique Decorations Illustration Of Chinese Garden Provided For Occasion.

The Y. W. C. A. entertained the members of the student body and faculty with an examination tea-dance in Terrell recreation hall on Thursday afternoon from 3 to 6.

Members of Freshman council were in charge of decorations and they transformed the hall into a Chinese garden. The members of Sophomore commission, dressed in Chinese costumes, served tea.

Cabinet members were in charge of the program. Laura Lambert sang several popular numbers, accompanied by Beulah Meeks; Blanche Holbrook also sang some popular blues, accompanied by Margaret K. Smith. Wilma Proctor recited some amusing stories.

The orchestra which played for the dance was composed of: Marie Parker, director; Dorothy Ellis, Natalie Pordom, Louise Butts, Elizabeth Hill, and Doodle Conine.

Six hundred called during the afternoon.

Who Should Go to College?

Albert Edward Wiggam, American lecturer, editorial writer, psychologist, and author of "The Next Age of Man," writes in the Cosmopolitan his interpretation of the answer to the question "Who Should Go to College?"

Wiggam says in the very beginning of his contribution that statistics showing only two out of every seven students entering college ever get through to graduation, prove that there is some mistake about every Tom, Dick and Harry trying to go to college because he got through high school or because his parents want him to go. We get exaggerated ideas about ability as well as perseverance both of which are necessary for the climb and without which many students pass the entrance tests and break down the academic and general morale of our institutions. To a large degree, however, the economic chaos has been and remains a weeding out process for a great number of persons in college because it is the thing to do, and it has made others take it seriously.

In summing up what happens to the other five of the seven who entered college, the writer says what is evident with the observance of our own student body year by year:
"Some quit because they run out of money; some because they cannot somehow adjust themselves to college life; but the majority of them are kicked out in disgrace because they cannot make the grade, or will not try to make it or for some reason that proves they ought never to have been there."

Wiggam names six types of students who get to college, suggesting that they explain the answer within themselves. They are: the scholar group ambitious to make many and various contacts, "the safety first group pushed off by parents, the good time group "pass-exam-forget group," those adhering to "a gentleman's grade is C," or mental labor saving group, and the "major-in-athletics" kind.

It is obvious that the writer is not cutting out any stereotyped group of students upon whom and only upon whom college degrees should be conferred. His motive in writing is to get across that evident fact that the standards of personal qualities so broad that only the men and women capable of showing a caliber strong enough to put them through the climb should receive entrance.

The Pennsylvania educational system has taken steps to measure comprehensively the ability of school children and to determine thereby what nature their later achievements will have. Scientific tests will soon solve partially the problem of crowded conditions and lowered standards in American colleges.—The Carolinian.

Important Questions

Are you planning to sit in the lap of luxury without the necessity of worrying where the next meal is coming from when you leave college? If you are, more power to you. But more probably you're counting on earning a living for yourself in some way, and in nine cases out of ten here on the campus, that way is teaching.

Then comes the second question, are you simply following the road of least resistance in the matter of choosing courses, trusting to luck that you'll be able to qualify for a job when the time comes, or are you definitely and systematically preparing yourself for your chosen field? Teaching today is a job which requires thorough and specific training, and it would be well worth while to look ahead, beyond graduation, and plan for the future.

The requirements for a Georgia state teacher's certificate have been posted and may be easily understood and fulfilled. In addition to taking this precaution, it is a wise plan to become specifically prepared in more than one field. As Dr. Beeson so aptly expressed it, "You have twice the chance of killing a bird with a double-barreled gun." This is a day of specialists, of course, but it does not pay to be too limited.

Another thing, superintendents, as a class, are not stupid. When they examine the college record of a prospective teacher, they are likely to notice not only the grades she made in her studies but also whether or not those studies lean towards "snap" courses. It is convenient now to take easy courses and so have time for other activities, but superintendents are apt to misunderstand and attribute such a procedure to laziness, a very undesirable trait in teachers.

The Boy Scouts have the right idea—"Be prepared."

Extending Education

No education can be complete unless it is supplemented daily by a review of the events outside the sphere in which one dwells. The gentle art of conversation is colored by discussions and friendly arguments on the latest new theory or the possibility of the success of some country's policies.

Such things are not to be found in text books which were written before the occurrence of any of the things which add spice to living. We are taught the policies of Napoleon, the ambitions of the Kaiser, the idioyncracies of Byron, and the beauty of Classic architecture, yet our interest seems to lag when it comes to a continuation of learning on these subjects. We seem no longer interested in the fact that a second Napoleon may be arising in the name of Stalin; we do not look for the peculiarities which interested us so in a study of Byron, when there are any number of equally as interesting characters among the modern playwrights; we do not transfer our interest in an ancient art to the same art in our modern times. We are content to say that we are college women, feeling that fact alone will be the "open sesame" to any circle of our aspirations. We are correct in a desire to attain a college education, but do not make it a superficial thing by failing to make use of the one thing it strives to teach us—that true education is what we really are outside a Labyrinth of "book-learning."

There are so many opportunities for girls on this campus to read newspapers and current magazines that it seems a sin that more do not take advantage of that prerogative.
Don't let the fact that you are not able to discuss a current situation with ease and understanding stand in the way of making the most of your college education.

Test Your Conversational Ability

Have you ever listened to your own conversation? Would it stand a test? Ask yourself these questions.

1. Do you make an effort to carry on an interesting conversation with your best friends as well as with mere acquaintances?
2. Do you speak only in monosyllables or the current slang?
3. Do you limit the topic of your conversation to gossip about your friends?
4. Do you know enough about world events to talk intelligently of them?
5. Can you start and maintain an interesting conversation with a stranger when, apparently, at the start you had no interest in common?
6. When you meet people do you find it difficult to continue the conversation after the first two minutes?
7. If you are in a small group, can you direct the conversation so that the group talks about the things you like to talk about?
8. When you tell a supposedly funny story does the group get the point?
9. Are you genuinely interested in what the other people say?
10. Are you a "good listener?"—The Alabamian.

Why Face Facts?

There are people who can paddle their own canoe up a swift stream, and there are those who drift with the current. Some people learn early to face each one of their own problems, and, as a result, grow stronger. They learn to live; others refuse to face the truth, either because they are afraid or because they are stupid.

In this modern world dreamers hold an important place. College girls are no exception. While performing experiments in the chemistry laboratory some student may have visions of discovering a new element.
Another may have vivid recollections of a certain moonlit beach. There are those who dream and work, the realists—and those who just dream and drift. The realist is in one sense a scientist. He faces facts. He keeps moving forward. In which direction is the other group moving?

College girls should face facts; honor, mental growth, ideals, service, loyalty, happiness—are forces that cannot be disregarded.
There are some girls in college who are not taking advantage of their opportunities.

Of course, we must expect some unpleasant weather in January and February, but then the sunshine record is getting mighty deficient in this section. We hope the growing hours of daylight will also mean more sunshine hours in the immediate future.

Campus Crusts

Methodists we should away to the forests of Haddock to recover from the strenuities of the past decade; however, such dormancy populates the greenery, we doubt as how, the students (doubts redoubts) would be capable of inspiring themselves to action. Task, task—'s awful, to say the most unimportantest.

Is there anyone who craves to torture humanity? Opportunity knocks at your door; that is, if you have one. Lib Wakeford is the object of such punishment when it becomes the dispositions of fond admirers to stutter for her benefit. However, unless you possess the armor of feudal warriors, don't attempt it. Lilies aren't in season just yet.

Have you given our stylish aperons of juniorhood their due sur-veyal? That jus' goes to prove the inconstancy of whatnots. One minute they're falling out of dex-elapated shoits, an' the nex' they're putting the whole campus in the shade. Oh, that we were a junior. What will time tell next?
'S getting to be a reg-lar Georgian.

"THIS WEEK'S NIGHTMARE (apologies to Uncle Remus).
Once in the village of Tchovd-gardent there lived a lil' girl with chestnut hair. Now the girl possessed a sister with pink and yellow hair (all in the same week). The latter knew where flowed the waters of Peroxide springs. However, she guarded her secret even from the fam'bly.
She was a condensed meanie.

Said the young hopeful one day, "I'll away to Aunt Hattie and tell her my woes. She started to away to the aforementioned. On the way she met a long, tall giraffe.
"Where are you going my pretty maid?" queried the giraffe.
"I'm going peroxidizing, sir," she replied at the great length.

"Then let me go with you," he begged, "perhaps I can be of assistance to you. I know what makes the springs set an' rise where."

"Good!" chirped the lassie. And away they went, the high-brow giraffe and the chestnut-haired girl.

Two hours elapsed (in public, too) and the two reached the spot which had a hole in it. The latter was covered with iron hangings and steel hinges.

"Woe is me! bewailed the femme. "What will the neighbors think?"

"Never mind," replied the giraffe. "I know the secret of it all. Then he shouted in a high voice, as a giraffe should. "Open Sesame." Iron hangings and steel hinges flew open with much gusto.

"Oh!" exclaimed the heroine, for a golden stream of deynthesized carrots had turned her mutty brown hair into bright gold.
And so, she went home and ate her grape-nuts and lived happily after ever.

Deliriously yours,
MERRY MOUDDE.

Through the Week With the

A new semester; a new hope; a new leaf; and renewed energy; a new opportunity for doing that thing you should have done last semester. Let "Y" help you turn that new leaf.

The Library committee has installed a "browsing shelf" as an addition to the regular "Y" library. On this shelf will be books which the faculty have loaned for this purpose and books which girls are allowing to be used. These books will be changed each week. The committee is going to post at each changing of books a list of the books which will be on the "shelf" for the next week.

For the week Jan. 30 to Feb. 4, the list includes a number of Oriental Anthologies:

1. Lotus and Crysanthemum.
2. Fur-flower Tablets.
3. Fireflies.
4. The Prophet.
5. Sceptered Flute.

A Letter To All

Dear Alumnae:

We are confident you will be pleased to know that the Georgia State College for Women has extended its service by the organization of the extension department.

Through this division courses are offered by practically every department of the college either by correspondence or at study centers.

Students may take as many as eight hours by correspondence and eighteen more at study centers toward the degree.

With the advance in standards for teachers it is advisable for all teachers to carry on their work toward a degree.

The cost is five dollars for each semester hour; for example, three hour courses cost fifteen dollars.
In many courses used texts may be purchased, and reference books borrowed from the State Library Commission, Atlanta, Georgia.

If you are not personally desirous of carrying this work at present pass this information on to some other student in your community who would be interested.

If you will furnish us with names of those who might be interested we shall be glad to write them.

With best wishes for your success, I am

Sincerely,

GEO. HARRIS WEBBER, Sub Director Div. Gen. Ex. University System of Georgia.

Miss Clara Hasslock On Program Committee

Program committee members of the Georgia Home Economics Association met in Athens last week and made plans for the entertainment of this group of state educators who will gather in Savannah on April 20, 21, 22 in conjunction with the Georgia Educational Association which convenes there on the same dates. On account of the position it occupied in connection with Georgia's earliest history, Savannah was selected as the meeting place of these organizations. To further carry out the biennial idea the program committee, of which Miss Clara Hasslock, chairman of the school of Home Economics, Georgia State College for Women, is a member, will feature Georgia speakers. "A Challenge to Home Economics in the Present Crisis" will be the theme of the entire program. Miss Agnes Ellen Harris and Dr. William H. Kilpatrick will be two of the outstanding speakers. Miss Harris, a niece of the late Senator, W. J. Harris and a graduate of G. S. C. W. is dean of women and head of the Home Economic work at the University of Alabama. Dr. Kilpatrick, also a Georgian, is professor of education at Teachers' College, Columbia University. Another interesting feature of the meeting will be "The History of Home Economics in Georgia," this treatise having been prepared by Miss Hasslock with the collaboration of other noted Home Economic educators.

For the week Jan. 30 to Feb. 4,

Bi-Centennial Soon Be Ready

Senator Walter F. George has been notified by post office officials that the special three-cent stamp commemorating "the 200th anniversary of Georgia and in honor of General Edward Oglethorpe, founder of the colony, will be ready for distribution in time for the opening of the bi-centennial celebration. It will go on sale first in Savannah February 13.

The stamp, the department announced, will be of the same size as the regular issue, 75-00 inch by 37-100 inch in dimensions, without border and printed in purple.

In a horizontal line across the top of the stamp in solid Roman letters are the words, "United States Postage." The central subject of the stamp is the likeness of General Oglethorpe, wearing a coat of armor. In each lower corner, within an upright rectangular panel with tinted face and narrow white line border is the large numeral "3", in white Roman. In a narrow panel at the bottom of the stamp is the word "Cents" in white Roman. On a white ribbon directly above the base panel is the name, "General Oglethorpe," in dark Gothic letters. On either side of the head, arranged perpendicularly, are the dates, "1733" at the left and "1933" at the right.

With best wishes for your success, I am

Literary Guild Names Officers

At a business meeting of the Literary Guild held in Miss Crow-well's classroom Saturday night, the following officers were elected for the new semester: President, Mary Bryan Leftwich; secretary, Mary Bryan Leftwich; treasurer, Wilma Proctor; program chairman, Flora Nelson; social chairman, Elizabeth McKoon; social assistant, Evelyn Howard.

Mary Bryan Leftwich, former secretary and treasurer, read the minutes of the preceding meetings and made a financial report. Leaders of the four study groups, Bennice Johnston, Eugenia Lawrence, Harriet Lawrence, and Helen Barker, gave an account of their meetings and activities.

Miss Winifred Crowell, advisor of the Guild, commended the outgoing officers on their accomplishments. She urged each person to support the Corinthian, that is sponsored by the Guild, in every possible way.

Poor Little Pup Gone Where Good Dogs Go

Gone but not forgotten. A gloom has descended on the campus; a loss has come that will not soon be forgotten. Little Miss "G" of the corps of the Misses G., S. C., and W. has gone to the land where all good dogs go.

Miss "G" was the eldest daughter of the beloved campus guardian, Alice. Her death came at the hands of a speeding motorist on Liberty street last Tuesday.
Death was not instantaneous to the little pup, after being struck by the car, but she was so painfully and fatally injured that a golf stick, wielded by another motorist brought sweet relief from an ocean of pain.

Dr. W. T. Wynn Heads Publicity Delegation

Will Represent G. S. C. W. At Association Meeting To Be Held Next Month.

Dr. W. T. Wynn, head of a delegation from G. S. C. W., will represent the college at a convention of the University Publicity Association which is to be held at Emory University, February 7-11, in connection with the joint session of the Institute of Citizenship and the Georgia Press Institute.

The general theme of the Sixth Annual Institute of the Citizenship is "The Press and Public Opinion." Because of the significance of the topic, the Georgia Press Association and the University Publicity have been asked to convene with the Institute of Citizenship.

Franklin D. Roosevelt has been invited to make the opening address. Honorable O. Max Garner, Governor of North Carolina, Dr. Howard W. Odum, editor of Social Forces, and Charles Stephenson Smith, chief of the service of the Associated Press will be several of the noted speakers.

Dr. Wynn has been a member of the University Publicity Association for several years and is a representative for G. S. C. W.

Ennis Hall Girls Enjoy Short Hike

A group of Ennis Hall girls enjoyed a pig-in-the-blanket-roast Saturday afternoon at Nesbit woods.

Great was the struggle thereof in an effort to refrain the coffee pot from becoming tipsy and the ground held a great attraction for the pigs but in spite of trials and tribulations, the hike was an un-rivaled success. The prize of an extra marshmallow was awarded the one eating the greatest number of pigs.

Those going on the hike were Catherine Brooks, Hazel Stewart,<

Candy Pulling Is Given By Alumnae

The faculty alumnae of G. S. C. W. entertained the college granddaughters at a candy pulling in the Terrell recreation hall Saturday afternoon. Some of the girls were dressed in costumes their mothers or grandmothers wore at college.

Rogers, Frances Scott, Annie Margaret Spears, Sue Thompson, Elizabeth Turnbull, Adrianna Lacombe, Louise Marsh, Elizabeth Moore, Harriet Mincey, and Emily Summerour.

BOOK REVIEW

"Flowering Wilderness"

By John Galsworthy.

This last book of the 1932 Nobel Prize winner has been widely reviewed and criticized although it is generally agreed that "Flowering Wilderness" is not on a level with the Forsyth books. Galsworthy has presented with his usual rare skill a code that is strong enough to wreck the lives of those who challenge it.

Dinny Cherrell, the maid-milant in an earlier novel, continue the heroine in this book. When she and Wilfrid Desert, a young poet from the East, meet, it is a case of love at first sight. Their happiness is short-lived. English society circles are shaken by the rumor that Wilfrid had accepted Mohammedanism at the point of a pistol to escape death at the hands of Arab fanatics.

Because of this outrage to the code of honor of the British ruling class, the English prestige in the East is endangered and Dinny's relatives and friends object to her marrying him.

Dinny might have got the better of the code and redeemed her lover, as she did her brother; she might have saved him from the disastrous effects of social ostracism, but the code had its strongest fortress in Wilfrid's own soul. His reason justified him, but his inherited feeling condemned him. Finally, ostracized and tortured by pride, he goes away, leaving the still loyal but baffled Dinny, with no solace but her memories.

As usual in a Galsworthy novel, the social background is sketched with consummate skill and the secondary characters are delicately and surely drawn.

Dr. Beeson Speaks On Importance Of Training For Special Teaching

Last Thursday morning in Chapel Dr. Beeson spoke briefly to the student body on the importance of preparing to teach those subjects for which there is a demand. Forty-three per cent of all school children are in the primary grades, he said. Three-fourths of them are in grammar school. Teachers for the lower grades are needed, and if a girl prepares to teach in grammar school, she has three times as many chances of getting a job. It pays to look ahead, choose several subjects, and be able to teach all of them well if necessary.

JOKES

We have been told that the Yellow Peril means a banana skin left on the pavement.

"With a single stroke of the brush," said the school teacher, taking his class around the National Gallery, "Joshua Reynolds could change a smiling face to a frowning one."

"So can my mother," said a small boy.

Twilight

The sun is sinking far in the West.

The clouds are rose and golden in hue, The shadows creep on tiptoe along Each woodland voice is sounding anew, And we listen to the call of the whippoorwill.

The air is cool, refreshing and sweet,

The stars like watchmen peep from the sky,

On wanderer's paths they're shedding their light,

The misty clouds go sailing on by,

And the world seems at rest in the twilight.
